

Twelve Members of Parliament attended an SCI-sponsored Canadian Parliamentary Outdoor Caucus breakfast meeting in Ottawa, Canada, on Dec. 4. The event focused on issues threatening hunting, angling and trapping.

SCI-Canada Keeps Legislators Aware Of Threats To Hunting

Firearms Ban Was Topic At Outdoor Caucus Breakfast

By Jason St. Michael

SCI Director of Membership and Chapter Services

SCI staff recently sponsored the Canadian Parliamentary Outdoor Caucus breakfast in Ottawa, Canada, on Dec. 4, and highlighted important topics facing all Canadians.

Twelve Members of Parliament attended.

This was truly a remarkable event. The meeting provided us with an outline and highlighted the current landscape within Canada, focusing on the issues that impact hunting, angling and trapping, as well as the individuals who participate in these activities.

Topics such as the current firearms ban, how Pennsylvania is considering protecting Lake Erie along the border, a lead ammo ban in Europe and trophy importation bans around the world.

I had the privilege of representing SCI Canada at this event as the SCI Director of Membership and Chapter Services, a member of the board of directors for the Outdoor Caucus Advisory Council, along with several other distinguished individuals from across the country.

Our participation in this meeting was invaluable, as it allowed us to discuss and address critical issues facing our community.

We are committed to advocating for the interests of our members and ensuring that the voices of hunters, anglers, and trappers are heard at the national level.